CHURCH

A close-up photograph of the facade of a large, ornate Catholic church. The image shows a prominent white dome with a cross on top, and a tall, slender spire with a golden cross. The facade is highly detailed, with intricate carvings and a mix of light and dark stone. The church is set against a clear blue sky.

CATHOLIC THEOLOGICAL ETHICS IN THE WORLD CHURCH

The First International Crosscultural Conference for Catholic Theological Ethicists

■ Thank you for coming to Padova!

We begin our conference appropriately in the Aula Magna of the University of Padova, where Galileo Galilei lectured for 18 years. There, hopefully, as we gather for the first time, we will have a sense of our own place in the church and in the world.

Each participant has sacrificed to come to Padova. Already the virtues of generosity and humility are evident: over 400 theological ethicists from more than 60 nations have travelled great distances, in the middle of the summer, many having had to go through long visa application procedures with fortunately a very benevolent government. Moreover, we are accompanied by nearly 50 doctoral students, representing our next generation. We come with significant expectations.

Others before us have come here with such expectations. In this city, Anthony preached, Giotto painted, Galileo lectured, Harvey discovered the circulatory system, and Elena Piscopia became the first woman to earn a PhD. It is a city of great creativity. We now become participants in its great history.

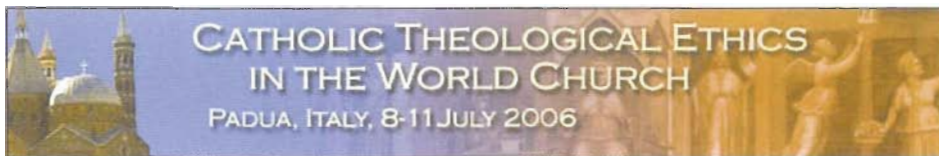

On behalf of the Planning Committee, our many benefactors, and our friends here in Padova, especially Renzo Pegoraro at the Fondazione Lanza, Welcome!

James F. Keenan, S.J.
Chair
